For the Love of Coffee

Coffee is believed to have originated in Ethiopia and now we are helping desperately poor and chronically hungry families in Sasiga Community, Ethiopia become coffee growers/farmers in order to gain food security.

We'll provide the coffee plant seedlings, the fertilizer to enhance the soil, and a well to provide clean water for 70 families, along with the training and the tools needed.

Dry Rice Farming

Pursat, Cambodia. A lack of food prevents malnourished children from attending school, forces fathers to search for work far away from their homes, and traps sick and frightened families in their poverty. Dry rice farming is growing rice all year long even in the dry season, helping families to nearly triple their yearly rice harvests in an environmentally sustainable way. It restores health, hope, and security to Cambodia's hard-working poor families. $3,000 can transform a village!

Freeing Families from Hunger

Families in the Monduli district, Tanzania will be taught new ways to conserve water for field and household usage. Beginning with assessments on nutrition and income, training will be provided for food production/storage of fruits and vegetables. In addition, proper care for poultry will help ensure long term food security for the most vulnerable.

Just $600 per family (5–7 people) will help provide food for today and for future generations.

Pushing Past 10

In a reclusive and isolated region of Mexico, 50% of children in the community of Baticora die before the age of 10 due mostly to lack of food, malnutrition and disease. We're helping families make it through until the next harvest time with a nutrition-packed food distribution early spring and then supplying them with the things they need to grow vegetables and fruit with Garden Grow Kits and chickens.

$3,000 for food distribution and $200. per Garden Grow Kit.
